You are scheduled for an one hour computer testing. Here are some things you should know before coming in:

- We use computer testing in our practice as a part of the multi-disciplinary approach to treatment.
- The same way that a medical doctor runs blood tests or scans, our doctors use computer testing to help identify problems areas to focus on .
- Computer testing helps with diagnosis when there might be several issues going on.
- It helps with individualized treatment planning and recommendations.
- Doing the one hour computer testing before seeing the Doctor allows him/her to spend more time with you and your family and gives you more one on one time, rather than him only being able to collect information.
- It is a more comprehensive way to provide treatment.
- It helps indentify underlying factors that may be impacting one's interpersonal relationships, motivation, functioning at school/work, social-emotional functioning or challenges managing impulses and behavior.
- It helps to determine severity, duration, and frequency of symptoms so the Doctor knows if the situation is mild, moderate, or severe.
- Testing is based on the national norms, so it compares your results with the general population.
- The initial computer testing helps provide a baseline measure so we can compare and see how things go after treatment has started.
- It is highly important with kids, it can help determine if there are any underlying learning or intellectual issues that need to be further evaluated.
